the graduate program at the center for remote sensing of ice sheets

CReSIS is seeking to hire students interested in the fields of math, science, and engineering to work as a team to gain information about the ice sheets in Greenland and Antarctica. The work is a challenging way to put your degree to good use and impact the future of the world at the same time. Sign up today! Visit www.creas.ku.edu